The East Wind

The East Wind was a summertime daylight coach train traveling daily from Washington, D.C. to Rockland and Bangor, Maine. It ran in 1940 and 1941 with specially painted canary yellow and silver equipment. After a hiatus for World War II, it ran without the special paint in tourist season from 1946 to 1950 and 1935 to 1955 on a progressively shorter route. It ran over the Pennsylvania Railroad, New Haven, Boston & Maine, and Maine Central until 1949. In 1950, its starting point was moved north from Philadelphia (starting point in 1948 and 1949) to Grand Central Terminal in New York where it remained until the end of service.
